SENATE NEARS FINAL VOTE ON TARIFF BILL

Candidates Busy Last Week of Primary Campaign

"STUMPING THE STATE" FOR ALL POSSIBLE VOTES

BROADCASTING FACILITIES OF RADIO STATIONS ARE OVER-TAXED

ELECTORATE SHOWS LITTLE INTEREST IN FRENZIED DRIVE TO GET VOTES

St. Paul, June 9.—(U.P.) — Swinging into the final week of the primary campaign, every candidate for nomination today was out "stumping the state."

Broadcasting facilities of radio stations were over-taxed by the flood of political addresses which have been scheduled for the final week of the campaign. At nearly every gathering of any size in the state candidates for office will make appeals for votes.

Despite the activity of all candidates and the interest in the Schall-Christianson fight, political observers pointed out today that little interest was being shown by the electorate in the frenzied drives to get votes.

Several political writers pointed out that there were no real issues in the primary campaign even in the struggle for republican senatorial nomination between Senator Thomas D. Schall and Governor Theodore Christianson.

Injection of personalities into the senatorial campaign and the fact that many local officers were being elected throughout the state led observers to believe that there would be a fairly heavy vote despite the apparent apathy of voters.

Schall and Christianson were to speak from the same platform today at the sixtieth anniversary celebration of the town of Benson. Schall was to speak this afternoon while Christianson will talk tonight. Schall will speak tonight at St. Cloud.

Christianson has 13 addresses scheduled for the week. Both he and Ray P. Chase, candidate for republican gubernatorial nomination, will talk at the state firemen's convention at Excelsior tomorrow.

Chase in an address before the Kiwanis club at Alexandria today said the east was profiting unduly through a high tariff wall and discriminatory freight rates.

Minnesota and its industries deserve equality of opportunity, he said.

Christianson spoke at 12:30 P. M. today over radio station KSTP.

It is expected that because of the few contests in the democratic and farmer-labor primaries that thousands of voters in those two parties will desert their ranks to enter the republican primaries.

PRINCESS HELENE REFUSES TO BE RECONCILED

FRUSTRATES PLANS OF ROUMANIAN MINISTERS TO ANNUL DIVORCE FROM CAROL

ONE STEP NEEDED TO RESTORE DYNASTY TO NORMAL ORDER AFTER CAROL CROWNED

By ALEXANDER HURTIG
(United Press Correspondent)

Bucharest, June 9—Princess Helene, whom Carol of Roumania left in 1925 when he chose the love of the auburn-haired Mme. Magda Lupescu in preference to the throne, refused today to be reconciled.

The princess thereby frustrated plans of the Roumanian ministers to annul her divorce from Carol—the one step needed to restore the dynasty to its normal order after Carol's proclamation yesterday as king. It previously had been reported she would agree to a reconciliation, if only for the purpose of preventing a split in public opinion.

Michael, the 8-year-old son of Carol and Helene, was taken immediately into the custody of his father when the latter received word of the princess' refusal. The boy who for three years sat on his country's throne, became a grand duke and heir apparent when the parliament voted that his kingly title had never been valid.

Today the child played with his mechanical toys in the royal nursery, glad that his father was back. To console him for the loss of the kingship, the parliament made him grand voevod de alba youlia—a title said to have been taken from a Viennese musical comedy.

Carol was proclaimed King Carol II by the parliament after an almost unanimous vote at noon yesterday, and last night he met Princess Helene for the first time since he eloped to France with Mme. Lupescu. The meeting was not successful, however, and Carol went back to his solitary throne with his only son and heir.

What effect the failure of a reconciliation will have on the country could not be predicted at present.

Events, which moved so rapidly in Roumania during the week-end, continued so today. When news of the unsuccessful attempt at reconciliation was learned, Maniu was busy forming a cabinet to replace the 24-hour government of Premier George G. Mironecu, who himself had succeeded Maniu Saturday.

The attitude of Dowager Queen Marie apparently was determined definitely today when a telegram came from her Oberamhergau congratulating her eldest son on his accession to the throne. King Carol replied in the warmest terms.

Shortly thereafter, Carol left Bucharest for Curtea De Arges, where he laid a wreath on the tomb of his father, the late King Ferdinand.

Helene will retain the title of Princess Mother, which she held during Michael's reign.

SETS NEW WORLD'S ALTITUDE RECORD

Washington, June 9. — (U.P.) — Lieut. Apollo Soucek, navy aviator, set a new world's altitude record for planes of all types in his recent flight here from the Anacostia naval station, it was learned authoritatively today.

Calibration of his barograph by the bureau of standards here showed the navy flier attained a height of 43,166 feet, which is 1,372 feet higher than the previous record set by Willie Neunhofen, of German, in May, 1929. The flight was last Wednesday.

ADVERSELY REPORT ANTI-INJUNCTION BILL

Washington, June 9.—(U.P.)—The bill to limit the use of injunctions in labor disputes was adversely reported to the senate today by the senate judiciary committee. No formal vote was taken in the committee but it was understood the line-up was 10 to 7 against the bill.

Dynamite Explodes In River Tunnel, Buries 30 Men, Kills Six and Injures 10 Others

BLAST IS 200 FEET BELOW BED OF DETROIT RIVER

RESCUERS GO IMMEDIATELY DOWN SHAFT, INJURED BROUGHT OUT FIRST

DEAD BROUGHT UP WRAPPED IN SHEETS, BODIES TERRIBLY MANGLED

Detroit, June 9.—(U.P.)—An explosion of dynamite 200 feet below the bed of the Detroit river buried 30 men in a tunnel today, killing six and injuring seven others. Two escaped without injury.

The dead:

Arthur Massey, Samuel Seiboldt, P. Tollison, Sparta, Tenn.; Ellis Howe, Charles Zuleski and J. Harper.

The injured:

William White, T. Craig, J. Borup, Frank Borith, John Alley, Claude Winkler and Frank Baity.

Borup, Borith and Alley were not seriously injured, physicians said.

As the blast reverberated through the tunnel, which is being constructed by the water board, and up the shaft, the bodies of men nearest its center were hurtled against the rock walls or the temporary structure of the mole.

Everyone in the tunnel were knocked down and some were partially buried beneath the rock and dirt jarred down by the blast.

Homer Abel, who was fifty feet from the dynamite charge, was knocked to the ground. When he was able to get up he raced to the tunnel head, hundreds of feet away, and up to the top where he spread the alarm.

Rescuers immediately went down the shaft. Injured were brought out first and rushed to hospitals, while all available police and firemen aided or formed a cordon to keep the curious back.

The dead, their bodies mangled by the force of the blast, were brought up wrapped in sheets. They were so badly crushed, police said, that they could not be identified immediately.

Most of the injured were rushed to St. Mary's hospital, nearby, while others were taken to the receiving hospital.

Two later died at St. Mary's hospital. The lives of four were crushed out in the underground tomb almost instantly.

The men who died at the hospital were Ellis Howe and Samuel Seiboldt. Neither recovered consciousness. Their heads were almost blown off, physicians said.

The explosion occurred, police said, when a charge of dynamite, placed yesterday, was accidentally discharged.

Several charges were placed in the tunnel yesterday and some of them failed to explode. Today laborers and drillers began preparation of other holes for dynamite charges. As one operator of an air drill was working the point of his drill came in contact with one of the charges placed yesterday. The explosion resulted.

EXPLOSION AT CALAVERAS DAM KILLS 7 MINERS

CAUSE OF ACCIDENT IS ATTRIBUTED TO NATURAL GAS

TUNNEL IS PART OF WATER DEVELOPMENT OF SAN FRANCISCO

Sunol, Cal., June 9.—(U.P.)—An explosion in the Alameda tunnel at the west end of the Calaveras dam killed seven miners and probably fatally injured another today.

The dead:

G. S. Paizes, 36; P. J. Reck, 41; Charles Brodd, 39; C. D. Koet, 43, all of San Francisco; Carl C. Cook, 25, Oakland, and Fred Flader, 28, Denver, Colo., and one unidentified man.

Confirmation of the report was issued from the office of the San Francisco water department here. The cause of the accident was attributed to natural gas.

The Alameda tunnel was under construction as a part of a development program started when the city and county of San Francisco recently acquired the Spring Valley Water Company, with a reservoir located in Alameda county, 18 miles from Sunol.

A crew of eight men were in the tunnel when the blast came.

Seven men were killed instantly and the eighth was rushed to a hospital.

The hills of the Sunol district are full of natural gas deposits and seepage from these deposits caused the explosion, in the opinion of water department officials.

The miners were drilling when the blast came.

Although the tunnel was damaged, the huge dam itself was not threatened.

With a series of reverberations, the portal disgorged clouds of white smoke and the air around the entrance became heavy with poisonous fumes. Oxygen tanks and gas masks were sent for and the crew stood helplessly at the entrance awaiting their arrival.

Although the explosion occurred at dusk, it was midnight before supplies arrived and the one-mile journey to the scene of the disaster begun.

The seven bodies were taken to the Liermore morgue and the one living survivor to Jackson hospital.

Though authentic accounts of the disaster could only come from the lone survivor, authorities of the water department of San Francisco, owners of the tunnel, explained tentatively that, since the workers were well aware of natural gas seepage in the region, the gas must have become ignited by sparks from drilling apparatus.

CARAWAY SAYS NOTHING ABOUT CANNON CASE

REFUSES TO COMMIT HIMSELF ABOUT CONTROVERSY WITH BISHOP

WILL FIRST TALK IT OVER WITH OTHER MEMBERS OF INVESTIGATING GROUP

Washington, June 9.—(U.P.) — Chairman Caraway of the senate lobby committee returned to Washington today but refused to commit himself on the controversy between his committee and Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Church, South, until he has had a chance to talk with other members of the investigating group.

Caraway denied he had given an interview at Jonesboro, Ark., after Bishop Cannon walked out on the committee, defending the bishop's action.

Caraway denied today that he had said Cannon's action did not constitute contempt but did not deny the portion of the interview contending the committee had no authority to question the bishop about his political activities.

"I have just returned and have not seen any members of the committee," he said. "I do not know what has occurred. We will have a meeting of the committee and determine what future action will be taken."

The next scheduled meeting of the committee is Wednesday, though with Caraway back it may be held sooner.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, who acted as chairman during Caraway's absence, insisted the committee was within its rights in questioning the bishop about his political activities in the 1928 campaign. Walsh also contended Cannon was in contempt of the senate for walking out on the committee last Thursday.

RIVAL CHINESE TONGS WAR IN MINNEAPOLIS

5 BULLET WOUNDS TAKE LIFE OF WOO SAM, CHINESE AGED 55

LARGE BLACK CAR FOLLOWED HIM, SHOTS WERE FIRED FROM AUTOMOBILE

Minneapolis, Minn., June 9.—(U.P.)—Five bullet wounds which police said were inflicted by rival Chinese tong men today took the life of Woo Sam, 55.

A large black car followed Sam as he walked home last night, he told police in a statement before he died. At Eleventh avenue and Seventh street, the car drew close to the sidewalk. Four of five men fired without saying a word. Five of the slugs hit Sam.

Sam told police that he recognized some of the men as belonging to the On Leong tong. Sam died at 5 A. M.

When a tong war broke out several days ago in New York and Chicago, city officials called Chinese leaders together here and the Chinese promised not to participate in the war. Police said they believed the slayrs may have come from out of town and were watching out-going trains.

OVERLOADING IS CAUSE OF DROWNING OF SIX IN ROWBOAT

Longview, Wash., June 9.—(U.P.)—Overloading was the reason given today for the drowning of six men who lost their lives while attempting to cross the Columbia river in a rowboat.

The party, consisting of three brothers named Josi, Nic Lami, and two other brothers, named Koski, started last night from Winlock, Wash., to row across the river to Walkers island. In midstream the boat capsized, possibly because of the movement of one of the passengers.

Their bodies had not been recovered today.

10TH VICTIM OF GANG GUNS IN CHICAGO WAR

MINOR HOODLUM AND SLUGGER SHOT TO DEATH AS HE WALKED ON WEST SIDE

AL KEARNEY SHOT HALF A DOZEN TIMES, ONCE IN HEAD, SEVERAL TIMES IN BREAST

Chicago, June 9.—(U.P.)—The 10th victim of gang guns in as many days was shot to death today on the far West side as he walked homeward puffing a cigarette.

A minor hoodlum and slugger since 1917, Aloysius Kearney, also known as Al Karney, went to his death as detectives investigated the death of the ninth victim, Eugene "Red" McLaughlin, "torture gangster' whose body was fished out of the Darinage canal Saturday and heard with interest that Frank R. Thompson, purveyor of machine guns, was near death in a Rockford hospital from a mysterious gunshot wound.

Kearney was shot a half dozen times, once in the head and several times in the breast. Apparently his assassins rode by in an automobile, shot him and drove on. The body was found by residents as a cigarette stub burned the fingers, indicating Kearney had been slain only a few minutes before.

Police at first connected the killing with the garage racket, a lucrative form of blackmail that has furnished incomes for the Capone gang.

A bundle of receipts of the National Garage Owners Association was found in Kearneys pockets. Sam Maltz, president, was taken into custody for questioning. He said Kearney was a collector. Police said the hoodlum may have run afoul of garage racketeers and paid with his life.

"He apparently got what was coming to him," remarked Chief of Detectives John Stege who was in the midst of investigating the murder of Eugene "Red" McLaughlin, whose body, bearing marks of torture and weighted with railroad angle irons, had been taken Saturday from a drainage canal.

McLughlin, who at the age of 26 had been often accused of murder and other crimes of violence, had been shot through the head. His body was brought to the surface of the canal by the churning propellor of a passing tug boat.

Meanwhile, several of the most notorious hoodlums in Chicago were missing from their haunts, giving rise to speculation that they had been disposed of but Commissioner Stege said they probably were only in hiding and expressed the hope they would stay there.

OPEN RAIDS ON DRUG STORES

FEDERAL AGENTS OVER WEEK-END MAKE FORTY-ONE ARRESTS

St. Paul, Minn., June 9.—(U.P.)—Opening a series of raids on Minnesota drug stores, federal agents over the week-end arrested 41 persons, all of whom face liquor charges. Most of them were to be arraigned today.

Druggists arrested were charged with sale, possession and maintenance of a liquor nuisance and alleged violation of the permit law.

Oscar Hargesheimer and Gerhard Olson were arrested at a Rochester drug store and Merrill E. Noot, Red Wing druggist, was taken into custody.

Alex Johnson, Hastings pharmacist, was not arrested but was ordered to report at once to dry officials. M. L. Harney, deputy northwest prohibition administrator, said he intended to take action to revoke Johnson's license to sell alcohol.

Eleven persons were arrested at Red Wing and 16 at Lake Henry, Melrose, St. Joseph, Greenwald, Freeport, Meire Grove, Spring Hill and El Rosa.

ELECTORAL UPRISINGS IN DISTRICTS

WONDER IF THEY HAVE ANY RELATION WITH BEARING ON TARIFF

SENATE CANDIDATES MOWED DOWN, REPRESENTATIVES RE-ELECTED WITH EASE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, June 9.—The frequency with which senatorial leaders are being defeated in primary elections is causing something akin to consternation in the senate as that body nears a final vote on the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill.

There is wonder in the minds of some senators as to whether there is any connection between the electoral uprisings which have brought successive defeats to Senator Charles S. Deneen, republican, Ill.; Joseph R. Grundy, republican, Pennsylvania, and now Furnifold Simmons, democrat, North Carolina. The apparently overwhelming defeat of Simmons, who strenuously opposed Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic presidential nominee in 1928, was interpreted here as indicating a strengthening of the old-line southern democratic party. It was recalled that Virginia democrats last summer defeated the gubernatorial candidate of the anti-Smith forces and that Senator J. Thomas Heflin, another Smith opponent, was barred from the democratic ticket in Alabama.

While senators know the issues in the widely separated communities were unrelated, they are asking themselves if there is a general unrest and dissatisfaction among the people. Their history teaches them it has not been unusual for an aroused electorate to turn its leaders out indiscriminately while a satisfied electorate tends to support the existing order.

Another enigma is that while senators are being mowed down members of the house are being renominated with comparative ease.

With the primaries only begun and many other congressmen yet to face their constituents, there is further eagerness among senators to get the tariff and London treaty out of the way so the repairing of broken fences back home can be undertaken speedily.

Neither the tariff nor the treaty has played a direct part in the senatorial changes, except perhaps the tariff in Pennsylvania.

In Illinois Deneen was defeated by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick on the professed issue of American adherence to the world court. Grundy fell before Secretary of Labor Davis after the present Pennsylvania senator had helped reframe and boost higher the rates of the pending Smoot-Hawley bill, sometimes termed by democrats "the Grundy bill." Simmons, the democratic tariff leader, went down before Josiah Bailey apparently upon the issue of Simmons' anti-Smith stand in the 1928 presidential campaign.

As these changes were being wrought, two senators emerged victorious from their primaries, Steck, democrat, Iowa, and McMaster, republican, South Dakota. Steck was unopposed. Both are facing severe contests in the November elections and neither seems assured of returning to the senate.

These political happenings may have no obvious connection with the tariff to the outsider but they have to senators who feel their political future in coming primaries may be bound up in the tariff vote.

Little change was noted over the week-end in the close vote line-up. Some opponents of the bill were inclined to agree with the administration leaders that the measure will pass by a vote margin and in all events by the vote of Vice President Curtis in case of a tie.

A report from the house and senate conferees on their adjustment of the rate section of the tariff bill was expected in the senate today. The house, meanwhile, turned to minor calendar bills.

The rate section was returned to conference after Vice President Curtis ruled the conferees had exceeded their authority in previously fixing rates on four commodities outside the limits of either the house or senate measures.

Debate on the tariff bill probably will be renewed tomorrow, leaders fore cast, and a final vote on the measure, now more than 18 months old, is expected on Friday or before.

The senate foreign relations committee was scheduled to meet in executive session today to decide when the London naval treaty will be referred to the senate for ratification. Meanwhile, a round robin to delay the treaty vote until after November elections was being circulated by treaty opponents.

Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee hopes to be able to report the treaty to the senate on Saturday, though indications of a bitter fight to prevent consideration of the instrument at this session were increasing.

Senators would vouchsafe little information about the round robin, as to either its exact contents or signers.

The water float or clepsydra in Canton dates back some 500 years and has been destroyed and rebuilt many times. It is composed of three copper vessels placed one above the other on steplike platforms. In the bottom vessel is a float with an indicator scale passing through it, which, as the water fills the lower vessel, rises and shows the time.

ROYAL AMERICAN SHOWS OPEN TODAY

Mammoth Attraction to be Seen at Paper Mill Showgrounds all This Week

TENTS ALL IN PLACE

Diversified Entertainment Found on Gayly Lighted Midway; the Unusual Featured

Residents of Brainerd were treated to one of the most interesting sights, and one that never tires, with the arrival of the two long orange colored steel trains of The Royal American Shows in town yesterday for their week engagement commencing today at the paper mill grounds.

There was a good crowd of interested spectators out at the railroad unloading crossing, as well as those who drove out to the lot to watch the erection of the big show.

Mothers and dads were there, young couples, prosperous looking business men and the inevitable youngster, just aching to heave rolls of canvas, or sweat under the weight of 12 and 15-foot poles, each and every one of them willing to work with much more gusto than when sweeping the carpets for mother, or cutting the lawn for dad.

It is a year since the popular showmen, Messrs. Sedlmayr and Velare, have brought their mammoth attraction to this city, but in this time, it is very apparent that The Royal American is fast on its way to be the largest show in the country.

Harry Payne, press representative, when in the Dispatch this morning, claimed that The Royal American is one of the best equipped, most modern and most beautifully illuminated on the road today. Payne claimed also that there is no attraction under the banner of The Royal American that can possibly offend any man, woman or child.

There has been added to the big show this year many new and novel features that have never been seen with any other show. One of the most interesting sights is perhaps the tribe of Ituri Pygmies. These people were brought to this country by Prince William of Sweden, when he returned from his famous Swedish-African expedition. Judge N. Brewer who was also a member of the expedition, is managing these quaint people while they remain in this country. Miss Calvert of musical comedy fame, presents in her palatially equipped theatre a real musical revue with a bevy of beautiful chorus ladies, another feature of the Calvert revue is the orchestra carried. The Rainbow Ramblers are said to be a hot bunch of musicians. Gen. Nadreau and his trouple of Royal Hawaiian Singers and Dancers presents a performance in his mammoth tent, a show that knows not what a dull minute is. For the kiddies is a Toyland Riding Academy, with real live circus ponies to ride. Something that people of all ages like is to stand and watch some monkeys, so the fact that Captain Curley Wilson presents a complete Monkey Hippodrome, with acrobats, tumblers, trick bicycle riders, is always a guarantee that there is plenty of diversified amusement on the midway of The Royal American Shows. Blinkey's Hippowalls, one of the strangest and most mysterious creatures ever exhibited, "The Unborn," (a very educational exhibition) Nil and her 127 young and weighing 1275 pounds," "The Outlaws," an object lesson that "crime never pays," "Serpentana," "The Circus Fun House," "Hoppi," the most unique of freaks, half men, half frog; freak animal show with specimens of freak animals from all over the country, and a circus sideshow that contains the sword swallower, the fat girl, the lady who handles the snakes, a four-legged girl and Norma Estelle, the mystic.

The Brainerd people will, before the week is over, have had the opportunity of riding in something that is entirely new to the show business, "Leaping Lena" is the lady's name, the ride is constructed not only to give you all kinds of thrills, but to please as well. "The Lindy Loop" is another big favorite, then there is the "Fun of the Farm," "The Buggy Ride," the giant double Ferris wheel, the whip, a beautiful merry-go-round, soft drinks, hot dogs.

The carnival is in town all week.

SENATE NEARS FINAL VOTE ON TARIFF BILL

It was learned, however, that at least two anti-treaty senators, McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, and Oddie, republican, Nevada, have signed it.

The senate judiciary committee was called today to consider the anti-injunction bill, which labor organizations are working to have passed during this session.

A meeting of the house naval affairs committee was scheduled to continue hearings on selection of a site for a west coast dirigible base.

Hailed as Beauty Likes Scholastic Career

The lure of the stage proved too strong for this 19-year-old Illinois girl, Lois Delander—particularly after she had been selected as "Miss America of 1927" at Atlantic City. "Houses" of Red Indians

American Indians did not build log houses before the coming of the white man. That is, they did not build log houses in the sense that the settlers did later. But many tribes built wooden houses, composed of poles for framework, and walls and roofs of bark and thatchwork. A few tribes even put logs together for their habitations, but they did not put them together after the fashion of the regular log house.

American Union of Swedish Singers

THE Northwestern Division, Union of Swedish Singers, will hold their convention in Brainerd on Saturday and Sunday, June 14 and 15, drawing a large attendance of singers and visitors to Brainerd. Choruses from five states and parts of Canada will unite in a grand festival concert at the high school auditorium, aided by an orchestra of 30 musicians.

Dr. Victor Nilsson, music critic of the Minneapolis Tribune, has written an illuminating record of achievements of the organization. Locally, the Swedish Glee club, a member of the Northwestern Division, was organized in 1919 with 14 charter members and their membership roll now includes 25. They are the host club for the big Brainerd convention.

The American Union of Swedish Singers, writes Dr. Nilsson, is a purely musical organization whose ambition is to cultivate Swedish male chorus singing and to make Swedish elements of culture known and appreciated in this country through the medium of biennial music festivals.

The Union was organized Thanksgiving Day, 1892, at a meeting in Chicago to which nine singing clubs, chiefly from Chicago, Minneapolis, New York, St. Paul and Rockford sent delegates. Today the Union numbers about 1,200 singers belonging to more than forty different clubs in various parts of the country, from coast to coast. This singers' union branched out from the old United Scandinavian Singers of America whose first festival was held in Philadelphia in 1887, the second in Chicago in 1889, and the third in Minneapolis in 1891.

The first and highly successful festival of the American Union of Swedish Singers was held in Chicago in connection with the three official days at the World's Fair of 1893. The second festival was given in New York in 1897 with two fine concerts at Carnegie hall. The festival had been postponed until said year on account of the Scandinavian Industrial and Art Exposition at Stockholm, held in King Oscar II's jubilee year, when, after the New York festival, a splendid chorus of fifty-four voices made a concert tour of Sweden which may be characterized as one unbroken series of conquests and pleasure, the old country for the first time realizing the high standards attained by Swedish male chorus singing in America.

In the summer of 1910, after another New York festival, the American Union of Swedish Singers sent a second, carefully selected chorus to tour Sweden, a venture met with as unqualified success as the first, the singers being as charmingly entertained by royal hosts and commoners as in 1897. King Gustav V and Crown Prince Adolf opened their palatial homes for the reception of their unpretentious visitors from America as did King Oscar before them. John R. Ortengren, the first director in chief of the American Union of Swedish Singers, also was the leader of both Sweden choruses but was lost to the cause he so nobly promoted in this country by remaining in Stockholm as a resident after the tour of 1910. Another pioneer director in chief was Arvid Akerlind, which excellent musician died in the year of 1912.

The Union for practical purposes as in the course of years has subdivided into various sections for the East, Midwest, Northwest and Pacific coast. These each hold biennial and jointly quadrennial festivals.

The festivals held in Minneapolis have been one in 1903 given by the Western division or section with Anna Hellstroem and John Forsell of the Royal Opera of Stockholm, and another in 1914 by the entire Union with Signe Rappe of Stockholm, Marie Sundelius of New York, and Gustav Holmquist of Chicago as soloists. In St. Paul a bennial festival by the Northwest division was given in 1925 which was made distinctly memorable through the first artistic co-operation with a touring chorus from Sweden, the Stockholm Student Choir. The first of these festivals had for director in chief John Ortengren, the other two Hjalmar Nilsson, who in 1914 was president of the American Union of Swedish Singers and now is with Charles K. Johansen of New York its only honorary president. These honors have come as entirely well deserved as unsolicited to Mr. Nilsson, who holds front rank as a promoter of Swedish song in America through forty years and more as choir director, organized and executive talent, all of the most ardent character.

Municipal Problems Considered

FIVE hundred delegates from cities and villages in the state will spend three days this week studying problems of municipalities which form the programs of the seventeenth annual convention of the League of Minnesota Municipalities at Duluth.

The sessions, which will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, will produce addresses by several authorities on questions of finance and administration thought to be vital to merit attention. Group meetings of the Minnesota utility conference will be conducted Wednesday and Thursday with delegates invited to attend any of the several sessions.

At the open forum of Thursday, convention delegates will have an opportunity to discuss licenses for automobile drivers, billboard licenses and taxes, poor relief, old age pensions, and municipal budgets, accounting systems and auditing.

Brainerd will send delegates. W. D. McKay, secretary of the water and light board, will address the public utility conference and the league. Mr. McKay is president of this conference. On Thursday morning he will address the whole convention on the subject of "Public Utilities, Municipal versus Private Ownership." Other delegates from the city will be Mayor Frank E. Little, Aldermen Ernest Ritari and William J. Lyonais.

Mayor William F. Kunze and Gerhard F. Bundlie of Minneapolis and St. Paul respectively, will be two principal speakers at the league convention. The convention will open Wednesday morning with an address of welcome by Mayor S. F. Snively of Duluth, to be followed by a response from Harry Phinney, city attorney of Morris, and president of the league.

RECRUITING in the Northwest has opened for the new motorized field artillery unit at Leavenworth, Kansas. Fort Leavenworth is also one of the army's training grounds and officers there are encouraged to pursue courses of advanced study.

ALL indications point to good crops in Crow Wing county.

SHARKEY-SCHMELING BOUT MAY HAVE MILLION DOLLAR GATE

NATIONWIDE INTEREST SHOWN IN THE MATCH

ASSURES THE WINNER GENUINE RECOGNITION AS WORLD'S HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMP

SUCCESSOR TO FISTIC HEROES FROM SULLIVAN DOWN TO GENE TUNNEY

New York, June 9.—The public's response to the Sharkey-Schmeling bout, scheduled for Thursday night, has definitely established the affair upon a championship basis.

Not only the demand for tickets, which threatened today to send the gate up above the million mark, but the nationwide interest in the fight assures the winner of genuine recognition as heavyweight champion of the world, successor to the long line of fistic heroes from John L. Sullivan down to Gene Tunney.

When Jack Sharkey, the erratic Lithuanian, and Max Schmeling, solemn-faced youthful German, first were matched for what purported to be a title bout, there was some doubt as to the public's acceptance of the designation. It was apparent today, however, that the interest of fight fans everywhere is quite as keen regarding the outcome of this bout as was the case in most of the great championship encounters of the past.

Not that either Sharkey or Schmeling rates consideration with the great heavyweights of the past 35 years, but the game demands a champion, and Thursday's winner, if the outcome is decisive, will be acclaimed king of the ring.

With the fight only four days off, there seemed to be a concerted effort on foot today to belittle Sharkey and declare his condition unsatisfactory. This should be taken with a grain of salt. The Lithuanian is in the capable hands of Al Lacey, who trained America's Olympic boxers for the 1928 games at Amsterdam, and we have it on the word of Al that Sharkey will answer the opening bell fit for the fight of his life.

Earlier in the training campaign, Schmeling disappointed those who had hoped to find him a real wonder-man of the ring, one capable of upsetting precedent, laying off for a year and still coming back ready to fight for the heavyweight title. Those who watched the German youth found him just an ordinary heavyweight, engaged in battering fifth rate sparring partners in the hope of establishing an impressive record of knockouts during training. Just as Schmeling apes Dempsey in the ring, so did he imitate the Manassa Mauler's training tactics, knocking down huge sparring mates. But fights are not won that way, and Sharkey is too old a campaigner to be impressed.

Sharkey is an 8 to 6 favorite. He figures to win, if he makes one of his fights, and certainly should, with so much at stkae.
being discussed. It is reported that the New York state commission has turned thumbs down on Lou Magnolia who would have been a logical choice had he not made such a mess of things when Sharkey fought Phil Scott at Miami.

Endicott, N. Y., June 9. — Max Schmeling was to box only five rounds today in his next to last boxing workout in preparation for Thursday night's heavyweight championship bout with Jack Sharkey at Yankee Stadium, New York.

Schmeling looked bad in yesterday's workout, and was outboxed by Charlie Belanger, Canadian light-heavyweight champion, and Lou Barba, Greenwich village heavyweight.

Schmeling will end training with a 4-round workout tomorrow. He will rest here until Thursday, and fly to New York Thursday morning, arriving in time to weigh in at 2 P. M.

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 9. — Jack Sharkey may end his boxing today, Trainer Al Lacey said after Sunday's speedy workout. If Sharkey's workout is satisfactory, Lacey may decide to call off Tuesday's boxing. Sharkey boxed five rounds yesterday, using a left hook to the body to good advantage against Johnny Grosso, who went three rounds. Sharkey's handlers announced he weighed 198 and would probably be down to 196 the afternoon of the fight.

HOPE TO DEFEAT ST. LOUIS CARDS IN GAME TODAY

"And the Greatest of These Is---"

By HARDIN BURNLEY

CHARITY, which "covereth a multitude of sins," is identified with professional boxing far more than with any other sport. The biggest single contribution to a worthy charitable cause from a popular entertainment is that derived annually from the so-called Milk Fund bouts in New York City. Ring headliners figure in these shows, a liberal percentage of the big receipts going to the maintenance of free milk stations for needy chidlren. The Milk Fund was organized and is conducted under the auspices of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst. Boxing is by far its most generous supporter.

Thursday night the world's heavyweight championship will be decided at the biggest Milk Fund show thus far staged, in what should prove to be one of the greatest international duels in fistic history. Jack Sharkey, U. S. champion, is favored by a large majority of experts, but his opponent, Max Schmeling—the actual champion of Europe—has tremendous public support. A gate of more than $850,000 is predicted, and that means that tens of thousands of needy children will be assured of an adequate supply of pure milk for many months to come.

It does seem at first thought to be a paradox that pugilism—brutally commercial in most of its detail and relations—should prove such a boon to charity.

Five shows at Madison Square Garden this Winter netted more than $100,000 for various worthy charities. Some cynics classify such generous gestures with the superstitious alms-giving of gamblers and such. But, whatever the motive, boxing does come through cheerfully—more so than all other sports combined—to help charity substantially. And sneers of sniffs cannot rend that mantle which, while it may cover "a multitude of sins," does cloak a heart and hand that contribute commendably to the good of humanity.

Yes, boxing promoters, the leather-pushers and their managerial guides are the Elks of the sporting world when it comes to "kickin' in" frequently and liberally for causes like that of New York's famous Milk Fund.

Tex Rickard's Successor

By HARDIN BURNLEY

BRUEN, general manager of Madison Square Garden, stepped into that job on short notice soon after George L. Rickard met his untimely death following a belated appendicitis operation early in 1929. The keen-eyed Frank January of the House of Bruen was chosen for his executive ability by William ("Call-me-Bill") Carey, president of the "Six Hundred Millionaires" corporation that conducts the Garden.

Horses, not boxers, had been Bruen's business forte. At Arlington, in Florida, or wherever he'd worked as a track executive, Bruen's brains and sportsmanship had become proverbial by the time the Garden needed to pick a successor for the late Tex. So Frank got the call and responded.

Now managing the Garden is full of trying details. Boxing is still in its "wise guy" stages. It's a racket for many sharpers, habitual moochers, and all sorts of phonies. Graft and grift are its twin evils. Of course, there is considerable of a decent sporting element in ring affairs, too, but such "regulars" are in a conspicuous minority.

Bruen has to do business with all the mob—good and bad—when their business is of sufficient importance. Long experience on the turf enables Frank to deal adequately with the vast variety of sporting types. He can be hard with hard-boiled guys and gentle with gentlemen.

Recently Bruen had considerable difficulties in dealing with Max Schmeling and his favorite American manager, Joe Jacobs, whose contract percentage methods have won for him Bill McGeehan's accolade as "the pawnbroker of pugilism." Schmeling and Jacobs were accused of repudiating an agreement made last year. They resented that. Feelings were tense, but when Bruen concluded negotiations the Sharkey-Schmeling world's championship fight was assured for June 12 next.

Bruen is a native of St. Louis, where his "Pa" was a famous turfman for many years. Bruen, Sr., was a pal of the father of George McManus, the great comic artist, whose "Jiggs" and "Maggie" are published the world over. What a German-Irish team that must have been in ol' St. Loo! Bossing the Garden or "Bringing Up Father" is an easy job compared to running races in Missouri thirty years ago! It was a great sport school!!

Remodeling Pays Big Dividends In Cash and Comfort

Every Dollar Invested Returned With Interest

Modern Home Improvement Financially Resultful

Scattered here and there around town are old houses carrying "For Sale" signs. Many of these stand empty month after month waiting a purchaser. Sometimes a year or so passes before they are finally disposed of—usually at a sacrifice price.

These old time houses, built back in the horse and buggy days, are often sound and substantially built. Honest workmanship has been placed in them and the construction of each part is as good as that found in the high class residences of today.

Yet these old timers stand idle. Real estate agents tell you that the property will not move because buyers are looking for modern appearing homes. They demand all the conveniences and comforts of today.

Old Houses Hard to Sell

The old residence, built back in the days of Free Silver, is hard to sell because it is out of date. The sound construction, the well seasoned timbers, and the careful workmanship put into the house is not evident to the casual eye. The virtues of the house are overshadowed by its unlovely design, poorly arranged room layout, and lack of modern fixtures and conveniences.

The buyer of a new nome is looking for something up-to-date. He passes by the old time residence in favor of a smart looking bungalow or two-story house. He understands and appreciates pleasing exterior lines, tiled baths, effective looking electrical fixtures and a handy breakfast nook.

Those houses that are modern move quickly on a slow market. They soon sell or rent. They are in demand.

"Improve—Then Sell," Say Realtors

Progressive realtors advise modernization. Out of their wide experience in the sale of real estate they point to instance after instance where the old timer was modernized and quickly sold—at a profit. The purchaser of property, no matter how low the price, hesitates to buy an old building and then spend additional money on improvements. He feels that he is not getting a bargain.

Yet he will cheerfully purchase the modernized residence at a price which includes the cost of the improvements and crow over his astuteness.

The realtor's advice is to improve the old property—then sell it. Invariably, he will point out, the residence moves at a profit.

It is good business therefore to modernize a house if there is a chance that it will soon be for sale. Modernization is insurance against loss and an investment that will provide a ready sale.

Modernize for Comfort

Modernizing with future sale in mind is just one phase of the movement. Another is the home comfort angle. Improve the property with your own comfort and satisfaction in mind, says the advocate of home modernization. They point out that it is poor policy to deprive one's self of bodily comforts and mental enjoyment when a few dollars will bring all this.

Many home owners are putting up with obsolete electrical fixtures, antiquated heating plants, noisy plumbing or worn, soft wood floors when a small investment would give them the latest of household equipment. More than one residence, once the pride of the neighborhood, is looked upon with disdain because its owner has neglected to clothe it with new lines.

Inertia and a false sense of economy keeps many old houses out of the modern class. The owner either puts off remodeling because of other cause or he feels that his money should be earning six per cent.

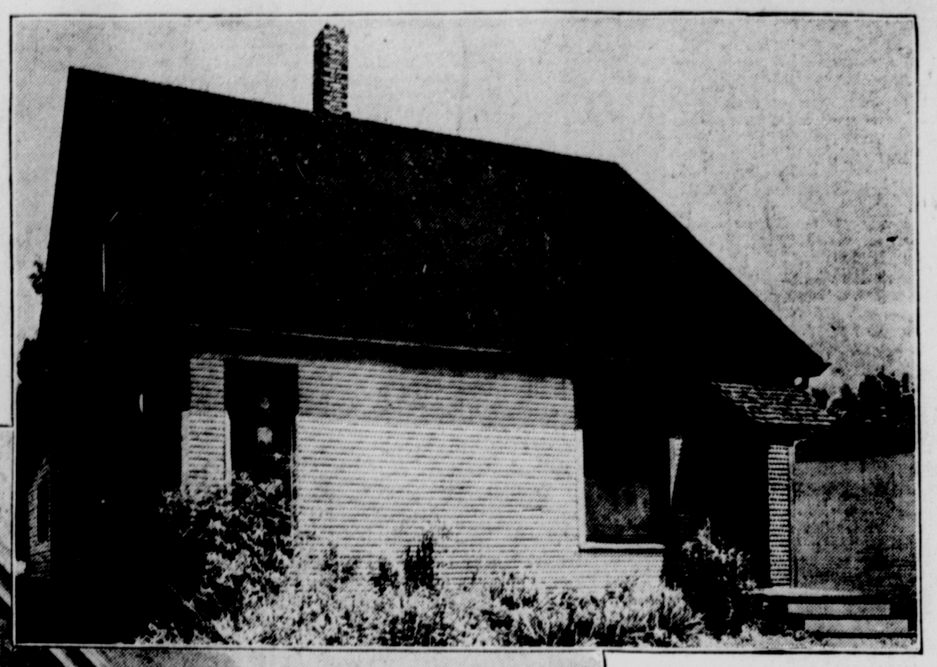
Cost is Low

The cost of modernizing a residence is low. Only a few hundred dollars may be needed to make a home strictly up to date.

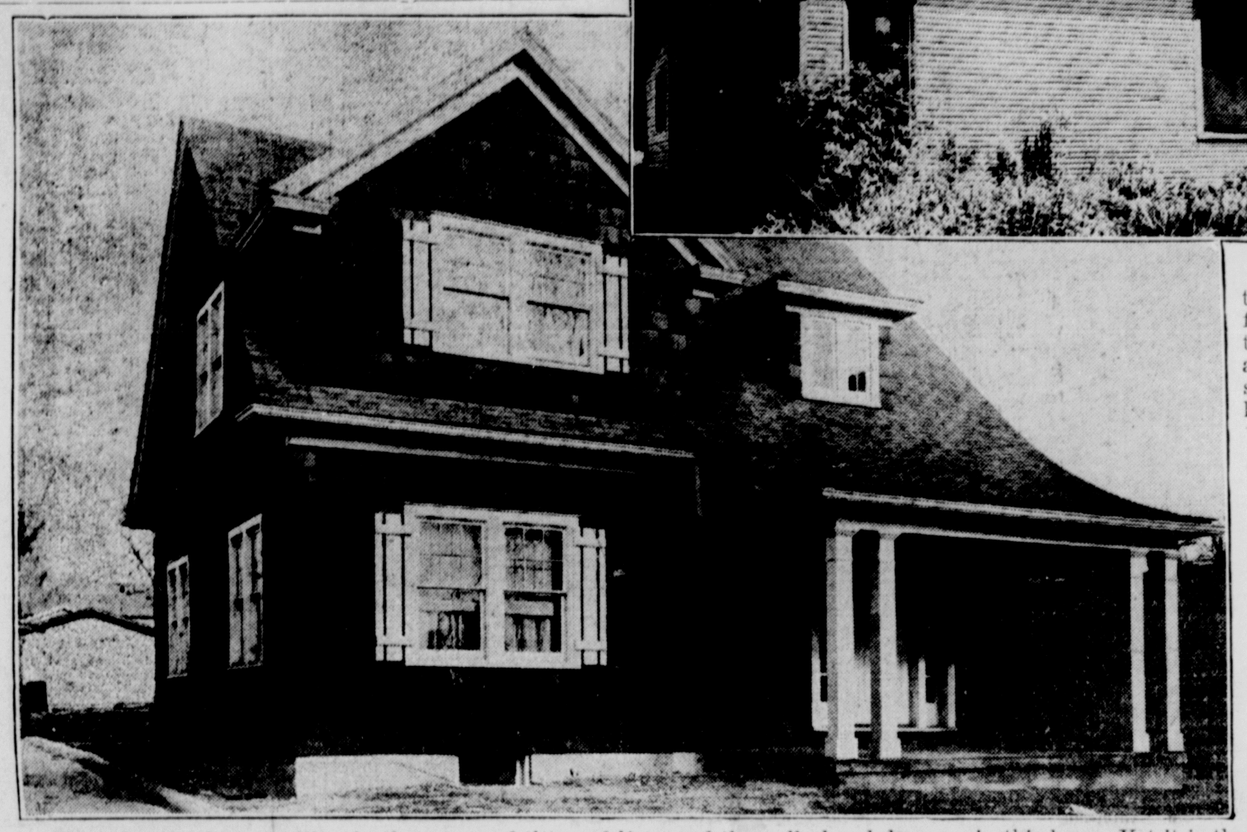
An investigation recently made reveals that the average cost of remodeling a house is about $2,000. This sum covers everything—exterior and interior.

The financing of the remodeled house is taken care of by banks and building and loan associations who are willing to put their money into such projects for their experience shows them that $2,000 invested in a $5,000 house increases its value more than the addition of the expenditure. The house often becomes worth $8,000 or $9,000 after remodeling—a wise investment, as everyone will admit.

You Would't Know the Old Home Now When Modernized



Bare walls and a roof is the best that can be said for this house. Then came the builder with visions of an attractive, home-like structure. The view to the left is the result.



There is something inviting in the sweep of the roof lines and the well placed dormers in this home. Yet it is the same sturdy, well constructed house illustrated at the top, made modern and up-to-date.

"There ought to be a land distress signal equivalent to the S. O. S. at sea," observes a correspondent. There is—I. O. U.

American Typewriters

An unofficial estimate places the number of American-made typewriters in the United States and other countries at approximately 7,000,000.

Experiment With Interior Design, Urges Decorator

The importance of interior decoration in the modernization of the average house is not realized, is the opinion of J. W. Duerr of the Brainerd Paint and Wall Paper Co., who called at the Daily Dispatch to express his appreciation of the Home Modernizing efforts of this paper.

"Too many home owners are reluctant to make new experiments in decorative design," asserted Mr. Duerr. "The dining room, for instance, has always been decorated with wall paper and when the time comes to place new paper on the walls or otherwise brighten up the room, they blindly order the walls to be papered without consulting with us to see if there is any other treatment that presents greater possibilities."

Inventor of Decimal?

The decimal point and its use are said to have been invented in 1612 by Batholomaeus.

Modernization Will Relieve Brainerd Housing Situation

The Home Modernizing Movement as promoted by the Daily Dispatch is bound to be an important factor in relieving the housing situation in Brainerd. Good rentable houses are always in demand but the average renter is not in the market for old time obsolete looking houses. He wants something that is up to date.

The owner who will take an old looking house and modernize it with new lines and up to date fixtures will find that he has a first class rentable proposition. The lack of first class housing is hurting the city and also the landlords.

Drive around the city and you will see any number of old timers standing idle, eating their heads off as the saying is, because they are unrentable. If the owners of these houses will spend the necessary money to modernize the building and make it up to date, they will find that the modernized dwelling will be literally snapped up by renters. They will keep their property rented month after month instead of standing idle for long stretches of time and then often rented to undesirable tenants who are careless and destructive.

Another important factor in modernization which must be considered is the saleability of the modernized house. Whereas the house with old lines and out of date fixtures is hard to sell, the modernized residence will move on a slow market. It pays to modernize.

Answer to Frivolity

A preoccupied attention is the only answer to the importunate frivolity of other people; an attention, and to an aim which makes their wants frivolous.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

NATIONAL TRUCK WEEK JUNE 9-14

Walter P. Tyrholm Company, local Ford dealers, announced Saturday that they would unite with Ford dealers throughout the United States in staging a national Ford truck week here and that during the week they will arrange special demonstrations of the new four-speed Model AA truck.

National Ford truck week will open Monday, June 9 and continue through Saturday, June 14. During that time the display room of the local dealer at Brainerd will be open from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m.

To familiarize truck users with the mechanical improvements of the Ford, the local dealers will have in their display room a chassis on which the new features will be shown. In this way the new transmission, the special spiral bevel gear rear axle, the larger front brakes, the heavier front spring, the front axle nearly twice as strong as formerly, the power take-off opening and the optional dual rear wheels will be readily apparent.

During the week the local dealers will make special demonstrations by actually putting trucks to work for interested truck users. If a coal man, for instance, would like to see the Ford perform, the dealers will send a truck out and haul a load of coal for them.

Crow Wing County Garden Flower Society in Timely Suggestions

It is not too late to plant a garden that will reach maturity before frost. All seeds of rapid germination will make rapid growth during warm June weather.

Should you not protect your hands with gloves while doing garden work, at least take time to rub your fingers and nails over a cake of moist toilet soap before working in the garden. When washing your hands, you will find that this precaution proves a time and labor saver.

Get up early in warm weather so as to have most of the garden work done before the heat of the day. But bear in mind that it is not advisable to disturb the leaves of some sorts of plants when they are wet with dew or rain. The foliage of beans especially should not be touched when wet as it is apt to be followed by "rust."

Should it be necessary to water the garden, give it a thorough soaking at intervals rather than a daily sprinkling. This holds good for the lawn. A light sprinkling is worse than none at all. The sprinkling induces the roots to push up to the surface of the ground where they are easily injured and die out.

Cabbage, cauliflower and other greens often bolt and refuse to form a heart. The way to make them head up is to cut or notch deep into the stem, just below the leaves; to "ring" them the same way as with fruit; or drive a six penny nail through the stem.

Eradicate weeds as soon as they are recognizable and may be safely removed without disturbing the young plants. One hour's weeding in June is worth two hours in July.

If your lawn or any portion of it is newly made do not cut the grass until it is really necessary, about six inches high. Then cut so as to leave the grass about three inches high. After the grass has become well established, the mower may be used and the grass cropped closer.

If you wish to have better Delphiniums, order seed from one of the reliable West Coast growers who have the better known strains. Advise them to ship when this years crop is ripe, which will be some time in August. Plant in flats out in the open as soon as received, covering them after freezing weather. Next spring they may be transplanted to their permanent places. One of the secrets of growing delphiniums is getting fresh seed and transplanting in the spring.

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER XLIV.

STILL she did not think too deeply. It was enough that the evening was over. That it had ended in triumph.

But Eve began to understand next day when Ken brought the papers. He gave them to her reluctantly, kissing her first, patting her shoulder. "Everything's all right," he said, repeating Nory's words.

The papers did not say so. Each one turned thumbs down on "Model Madness." They called it stupid. One critic wrote, 'Model Madness' was produced at the International Theatre last night. Why?"

They mentioned the book, "Revelations Of An Artist's Wife," pleasantly, marveled that anything so banal as the play could have been made out of it.

Eve was in a daze. "But, Ken, —they liked it. I though they all liked it——" She was too numb to cry, white and numb.

"Shucks, sweetheart, what do you care? Forget it. Your book was swell—what do you care for the lousy play? Come on, now, smile for Ken. Don't want you hurt—hell, can't stand it to have you hurt——"

"You're wonderful, Ken——"

"That's her old man's girl. Knew last night it wasn't going over; everybody did. Everybody falls down sometimes—you belong to the faw down club now, reddy-red——"

"They all knew? They were so nice to me, Elma, Fifi—all of them. That's why—yet nobody is kind to failure."

"The gang's a little goofy, Eve, but their hearts are in the right place. They all love you."

She felt comforted. And shortly the tribe began to rally. Elma cut every last one of the crysanthemums she was so proud of and brought them to Eve. Jan came with home-made wine and Fifi brought a lace handkerchief an aunt had sent from Paris.

They sputtered about critics, about stupid first-night audiences, about the whole dumb theatre-going crowd. They were tactful and clever and they kept firm the pride Eve had thought about to crumble.

And when Marks telephoned gloomily that "Model Madness" would be taken off at the end of the week she answered him cheerfully enough.

"I'm sorry you've lost a great deal of money, Mr. Marks. That's the only thing I'm really minding."

"Luck of the game," he whispered. "Well, so long, sis." As casually as that he passed out of her experience.

Quiet days followed. Eve had finished the writing she had promised "Wade's Weekly" and now had no wish to begin anything else. She felt a new affection for the tribe, these people who could be hostile to success, so gentle to failure. And each day she resolved to tell Ken about Stony Wall and each day put it off until the next.

In the end she took herself to task for a great shilly-shally. "What am I afraid of, anyway? It's got to be done some time—Ken certainly won't bite. Well, then, this afternoon. Right after lunch and not one instant later."

But before lunch a telegram came. Uncle Mat was sinking; Eve must come at once.

In a flurry of tears she set out for Lakeview.

Uncle Mat lingered a few days, frail and gentle, smiling at all of them, saying over and over that death was not to be feared.

"The great adventure," he kept repeating. "I've lived too close to it to be afraid. I'll not feel lonely passing over, dear. Only those who cling to life are lonely. Life has been kind to me. My brothers —splendid fellows—and I've had you. You'll not mourn for me, Eve?"

"Dearest," she sobbed. "Dearest—never to see you again—to have your love—"

"But you'll have that, dear. Death is not end, only change. Spiritual qualities live on and progress. Who shall say that death does not teach a great lesson if one has courage to learn? I shall be with you as I've always been, only more understandingly. Indeed, you shall know it. Believe this, Eve. It has been my own experience."

He spoke then, for a time, to her, of the girl he had loved in his youth, the girl who had died almost on the eve of their wedding day. "I never lost her—beautiful Ruth of long ago. Never felt a real separation. My brothers wondered why I did not marry, but they were not aware of this, that love does not need the physical presence of the beloved. Remember this if sometimes you would sorrow for me. There is no destruction, Eve. God is eternal and so is His creation."

The brothers shook their heads sadly; Uncle Mark and Uncle Luke and Uncle John never had comprehended the unobtrusive mysticism of their older brother, much as they loved him.

But Eve understood. And she managed to keep her tears back as she sat by his side hour after hour reading him passages he loved from the Book of Books:

"Let not your heart be troubled . . . In my father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you . . .

"Love never faileth... For now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know even as I am known...

"Beloved, now are we the sons of God..."

Toward the end Uncle Mat called her Ruth. And it was believing that the sweetheart of his youth had returned to smooth his pillow, hold him in her arms, that he fell asleep.

They had meant the funeral to be small and private but that was before they knew how beloved had been the frail old creature. People came from far and near bearing flowers, begging with tears running down their faces to be allowed to pay their respects to the passing of a good man. Old farmers he had helped out of his slender resources; young men gone out into the world, building fine, successful lives because of Uncle Mat's encouragement and advice; county officials, one high in the government of the State—humble folk and illustrious all knew and loved him.

And so in the end it was a throng that gathered in the old house, sat through the solemn beauty of the service.

"I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord: He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live——"

Eve felt no despair of sadness, no sense of death. Only pride in the glory of the life that was ended—no, not ended, merely gone on beyond her ken. And a high courage. And when they had returned from the cemetery up the hill she sat with the uncles, helped them plan.

It was essential that they return at once to their homes and families and their work. There seemed no point in keeping the house open; old Mrs. Wiggins tearfully declared that she wished to leave. Roger Mills, who had solaced himself with another girl and soon would be married, wished to buy the farm and the uncles wanted to sell. They looked at Eve doubtfully, fearing she would object.

But she advised this. "He wouldn't have wished us to make an occasion of sadness of this, dears. Let us go about everything as if he were with us. Of course, it's best to sell while all of us are here."

"That's the girl," cried Uncle John.

Then came the question of division and Eve somewhat timidly asked for the furniture as her share. "I've a place to put it now and it would be fine to keep everything together. Uncle Nat's library—all the books as he had them here. And you could come and visit just as if you were back in the old home."

The uncles considered, told her she would be getting less than her right under the arrangement. "Though we could fix that with some book-keeping."

"Oh, what does it matter? It's what I want more than anything. Nothing could please me so much."

It was agreed this way. With Mrs. Wiggins, Eve spent a week sorting, packing, getting things ready for removal. Then a great van came and loaded most of the old things—dear old things—and set out for Haverford. First Eve went about the house gazing for the last time upon each room, upon each corner of the garden, the fields. She kissed the uncles good-bye tremulously, smiling through tears, determined to be brave. Then she drove away in the van with the furniture, not looking back.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

2 WOMEN LEAD BANDIT GROUP

RAID THE RICHMOND HILL, N. Y., BANK, ESCAPING WITH $19,000

Richmond Hill, N. Y., June 7.—(U.P.)—Two women led a group of five bandits in a successful raid on the Richmond Hill National Bank today and escaped with $19,000.

The two women and three men, all wearing masks over their faces and carrying pistols, appeared at the bank an hour before opening time. They calmly ordered the porter inside and trussed him up behind the cages.

Then they waited quietly while other employes appeared. As each employe came in he was bound and placed behind the cage. Finally the manager of the bank, Albert M. Throne, appeared. He opened the vault, the five bandits seized the $19,000 and escaped in an automobile that was waiting outside.

Police said that the bandits had been fortified in addition to pistols, with tear gas bombs.

Newark, N. J., June 7.—Four bandits entered the South Side National Bank and Trust Company today, rounded up five employes and three customers and escaped with about $15,000.

A fifth member of the gang lolled at the wheel of an automobile parked outside the door and when his companions appeared, drove the car safely into heavy traffic, completing the second outright bank holdup in Newark history.

Oyster Cultivation

The various countries which raise oysters for market besides ours are: England, France, Germany, Holland, Spain, Italy, Australia, China, Japan, Canada, Mexico and certain parts of South America and Algeria. In these various countries there are about ten different species of oysters, all of which are similar in structure to our own, though some do not grow so large and do not have the same flavor.
